TL;DR

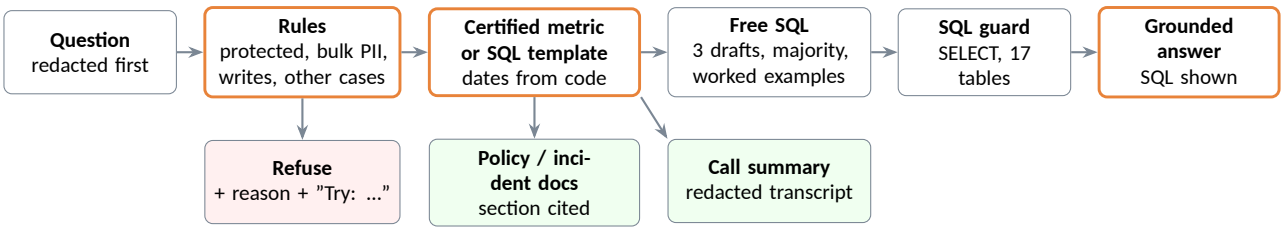

Dev split: accuracy 94% (18 in scope), refusal recall 100% (3 to refuse), refusal precision 100%. Targets 80% / 95%: PASSED.

The organisers score the hidden test split; here we can only show what the Ask did with it. Every refusal is on a question that asks for a protected attribute, bulk personal data or something outside the data.

How the Ask gets there

A question climbs down a ladder and stops at the first step that can answer it:

1. Rules refuse protected attributes, bulk personal data, write actions and other people's cases, before any LLM.

2. Certified metrics and SQL templates: reviewed SQL for the 15 official metrics plus our templates (charge-offs in a window, 30-day cure rate, calls outside permitted hours). The LLM only picks one and fills filters, groups and dates.
3. Dates are worked out in code ("the 12 months to 28 Sep 2026" → 2025-09-29..2026-09-28), never by the model.
4. Free SQL only when nothing above fits: three drafts, the answer at least two agree on wins, with our own worked examples and table context in the prompt, then a guard (SELECT only, 17 tables, no personal columns, row limit, 10 s).
5. Policy, incident and call questions go to document search or the call's redacted transcript, with the source cited.
6. Grounding: every number in the sentence has to be in the result rows, or the sentence is dropped.
